Office

Staff updates

Gonzalo Lasarte has joined the World Archery office as marketing coordinator. He will work on the federation's commercial offering and sponsor relations, supporting head of events and marketing Thomas Aubert. Gonzalo holds a degree in business administration from CUNEF and completed the AISTS masters in Lausanne. His professional experience includes financial consultancy at PricewaterhouseCoopers and international sports marketing roles. He can be contacted at glasarte@archery.sport.

Partnership

Compound project

World Archery and PSE have signed a four-year agreement lasting until 2023 that will see the federation and manufacturer partner on improving access to compound archery worldwide. The collaboration focuses on developing a comprehensive grassroots programme. As part of the agreement, PSE will receive exposure at international events and on World Archery's digital properties.

Achievements

Athletes of the Year

Hyundai Archery World Cup Champions Mike Schloesser and Sara Lopez retained their World Archery Athlete of the Year titles for 2019. It is the third time Mike has won the award and the fifth consecutive trophy for Sara. World Archery Champion Brady Ellison and world number one Kang Chae Young were named the best recurve archers of last year. The awards are decided by a combination of public and expert votes.

Hyundai World Cup 2020

The Shanghai stage of the 2020 Hyundai Archery World Cup in May will be moved as the city will instead host this year's Hyundai Archery World Cup Final in the autumn. World Archery had been monitoring the situation around the COVID-19 outbreak since late January. A change to the calendar was required in view of recently introduced travel restrictions on athletes and officials, and the packed international schedule.

Antalya 2020

Antalya is set to replace the postponed second stage of the 2020 Hyundai Archery World Cup in Shanghai. The event will also be delayed by one week from its original schedule and now take place on 11-17 May, which will allow many athletes to remain in Antalya for the European Championships on 20-26 May. Antalya will host a stage of the international circuit for a 15th consecutive season.

World Series Finals

Californian 24-year-old Paige Pearce won the first major target title of her senior career as she beat Lisell Jaatma in the compound women's final at the 2020 Indoor Archery World Series Finals on home soil in Las Vegas, USA. Mike Schloesser, Florian Kahllund and Wi Nayeon also took titles in Vegas. The circuit started back in November 2019 and has visited six cities around the world.

Team Competition

Squads from Lancaster Archery Supply and Mathews won the top prizes in the team competition for the 2020 Indoor Archery World Series. The Lancaster recurve group, led by world number one Brady Ellison and featuring his US teammates Jack Williams and Casey Kaufhold, accrued 3405 ranking points, more than double of second-ranked Beiter. Braden Gellenthien, James Lutz and Tanja Jensen put Mathews at the top of the compound ranking since scoring big at the fifth stage in Nimes.

The Vegas Shoot

Twenty-two-year-old Kyle Douglas beat 22 other men in the championship open shootdown in Vegas to win the tournament's biggest prize of 54,000 USD. The relatively unknown archer out of Utah had previously won the young adult championship at the Vegas Shoot. This was his first time making the last line in the main event. More than 3800 archers competed in the largest Vegas Shoot ever in 2020.

ISSF Championships

The Bangladesh Archery Federation has postponed the ISSF International Solidarity Championships scheduled to be held in Dhaka on 22-28 February. A number of teams withdrew due to travel restrictions and ongoing concerns around the COVID-19 (coronavirus) outbreak. This meant the event was no longer feasible. The tournament will be rescheduled at a later date.
